

HOW COUNTRIES ARE FACING WITH THEIR ENVIRONMENTAL ISSUES REGARDING "SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT"

Professor Ghareman Suleymonpor

I believe our contribution should be environmental issues as one of the important areas of diplomacy of many countries informing and inspiring Scholar of Environmental issues, dedicated to helping emerging leaders of different nations accept responsibility and leadership for improving the environment of region, to learn more about self governance and to see that the two are connected. "environmental problems such as climate change and the loss of biological diversity have been considered as a threat to the earth and mankind." These problems cannot be coped with by a single country. They require a joint, cross-border approach by the international community."

my take on environmental degradation in Central Asia, decline of wetlands,forest,pollution drought,agriculture,and etc.. issues for Afghanistan and Tajikistan, Iran. Neareast, north Africa countries often have different views on how they should cope ." Various conventions and frameworks have been created, and international efforts have continued, to overcome and address the common international challenges to the conservation of the global environment and the sustainable use of natural resources.
